I have been often well prepared for the appearance of all the things, long before they are known to the public. The first class we determined on to give was an address to "Science and Religion," the second on "Miracles," and the third on "Miracles in Space and Time." The fourth, though, I might say, "Miracles and Mysticism." The dates and places are set out in the foregoing programme. I signed "Miracles of Space and Time" for the first. I hardly expect it to be a work of practical use to the first part. Despite our numerous studies of nature, I have not been able to obtain the same intellectual and moral satisfaction as I could from the study of the Bible.
